Wildlife Watch promotes a practical way for children to discover and learn about the natural world

What is Derbyshire Wildlife Trust?

Derbyshire Wildlife Trust is the only organisation working to protect all wildlife across the county. A Registered Charity, we are supported by more than 14,000 members and a strong team of volunteers. We manage nature reserves throughout Derbyshire and advise local authorities and landowners on conservation. We also carry out a wide range of environmental education activities with schools and communities.

Derbyshire Wildlife Watch

Schools Wildlife Watch Join up today!

Wildlife Watch is a club for all young animal fans, nature sleuths and environmentalists up to and including 16 years of age.

Wildlife Watch could...

- Help you start or develop an existing wildlife gardening or environmental club
- Provide practical ideas and resources to use in the club or classroom
- Train teachers and volunteers to carry out environmental activities
- Create opportunities and ideas for learning outside the classroom
- Help towards the Eco-schools scheme

Children can...

- Learn about nature in a fun, informal way
- Find out why it's important to care for wildlife
- Put their concerns about the environment into practice
- Develop their own ideas about how to protect the natural world

What do you get from being a member?

- Three mailings a year of our members' magazine Wild Derbyshire which contains news and features on local wildlife and a round-up of news and projects from the Wildlife Trusts around the UK
- Wildlife Watch, our full colour membership magazine for young people, packed with competitions, puzzles, reader letters, pictures and a free poster – sent quarterly
- 15% off visits to our education centres, and activities in your school and on our nature reserves - see what's on offer at the Discovery & Learning section of our website
- Link Magazine, a special resource for teachers / after school leaders, full of activities – sent quarterly
- Free resource book full of ideas for environmental education activities, to inspire and educate
