“How Fair Is Britain?”

This is the question posed by the Equality and Human Rights Commission in its 700-page anatomy of disadvantage in the 21st century published in 2010. In the context of the new Equality Act 2010, and also the Government’s proposals around the “Big Society” and the future for public services in particular, this conference couldn’t be more timely. The aim of this conference is to engage with these issues by drawing together academics and professionals/practitioners to look at challenges, and outline solutions, to make Britain fairer, based on how far we have come over the past 12 years.

CONFERENCE THEMES

This conference will address the following areas of enquiry:

- Fairness and the Criminal Justice System
- Fairness and Education
- Fairness in Social Care/ Local Government
- Fairness in Health
- Fairness in Sport
